

MEMO FROM
J. LEDERBERG
GENETICS DEPARTMENT
STANFORD UNIVERSITY
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA

TO: R. Glaser

TX
RC
RO

AUG 6 1969

Perhaps care (= caritas) should also start at home.

Would we not be well off to make our own start at carrying research-risk insurance, at the very least for healthy subjects who volunteer with no reference at all to possible therapeutic benefits?

(I noticed a lot of staff in the department today had offered blood samples for who knows what. The risks are substantially zero but that's a good place to begin.)

This would surely be an overhead-able item.

The insurance would go beyond the possible recovery for consequences of negligence; in fact, it would be an effort to get out of that ball park already together

J.

AUG 7 1969

sent 8/7/69